

Literacy

Our services in literacy help governments and other organizations ensure that primary grade children develop reading skills and a habit of reading. By giving teachers, librarians, school leaders, and district-level staff families, and community leaders the tools and training they need, children can become lifelong, independent readers.

Instructional Design for Grades 1 and 2

- Curriculum analysis
- Scope and sequence of a foundational reading and writing program for children
- Development of teacher and pupil books

Professional Learning

- Training for teachers and coaches in the implementation of effective reading and writing instruction

Student Performance

- Reading and writing assessment and tracking tools

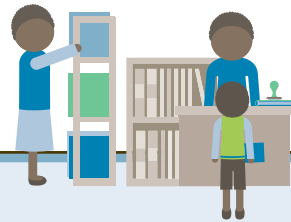

Establishing School Libraries

- Site selection and library set-up

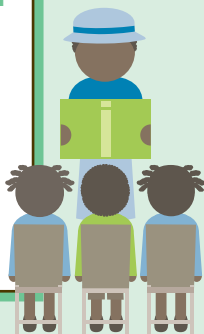

Managing School Libraries

- Library set-up, book leveling, creating a print-rich environment, check-out systems
- Professional training for librarians and library management facilitators
- Measuring effectiveness of library systems and services

Reading Activities in the Library

- Training for teachers and librarians; incorporating library books into classroom instruction

Quality Books and Other Reading Materials

- Book development skills – story and illustration development, editing, design
- Cultivating authors and illustrators
- Operations management for children's book publishing

